Here, I will present solve problems typical of those offered in a mathematical economics or advanced microeconomics course. The problems were originally compiled by Dr. Charles N. Steele and are reprinted with his generous permission.
The solutions to the problems are my own work and not necessarily the only way to solve the problems.

Engineers seek solutions to problems, and the economic viability of each potential solution is normally considered along with the technical aspects. Fundamentally, engineering economics involves formulating, estimating, and evaluating the economic outcomes when alternatives to accomplish a defined purpose are available.
