This workbook/textbook package accompanies the main text Health Information: Management of a Strategic Resource (ISBN 0-7216-5132-1).

Here is a unique book. It describes the theories and processes of repairing and adjusting the modern watch in precise and meticulous detail: a thing which has never been done so completely before in the many books on the same subject. As a text book it is a revelation. Taking nothing for granted, except the ability to read and comprehend a simple description of mechanical processes, de Carle takes his reader through every stage and every operation of watch repairing ...and to deal with them thoroughly is quite a programme - it takes 300 pages containing 24 chapters, two appendices and 553 illustrations. The fine draughtsmanship and accurate technical detail of the illustrations set a new standard. Practical Watch Repairing can justifiably claim to be the best illustrated book on practical horology yet issued, and one of the best of its kind on any subject. The publication of the book marks the beginning of a new epoch in the study of the mechanics of horology.

This practical, field-tested reference doesn't just explain the characteristics of finished, high-quality data models--it shows readers exactly how to build one. It presents rules and best practices in several notations, including IDEFIX, Martin, Chen, and Finkelstein. The book offers dozens of real-world examples and go beyond basic theory to provide users with practical guidance.

The process through which a liquid material is delivered into a mold, which contains a hollow cavity of the intended shape, and then being allowed to cool is known as casting. It is generally used to produce sophisticated shapes which are difficult or uneconomical to make using other methods. Metals and other time setting materials are usually used for casting. It is used in the making of a variety of products such as bronze structures, concrete structures, collectible toys, weapons and tools. The traditional methods of casting are lost-wax casting, sand casting and plaster mold casting. The modern casting processes are classified into two categories, expendable and non-expendable casting. The topics included in this book on casting are of utmost significance and bound to provide incredible insights to readers. Some of the diverse topics covered in this book address the varied branches that fall under this category. It will serve as a valuable source of reference for graduate and post graduate students.
